ALLIES NOW ONLY 5 MILES FROM MAJOR CITY

Pulverizing Push Sends UN Troops To Within Siege-Gun Range Of Seoul

TOKYO, Feb. 5 — American troops, powered by the largest tank force yet put into action in Korea, drove within five miles of Seoul today in a widened United Nations offensive that mowed down thousands of Red soldiers.

The pulverizing push was broadened to embrace a 55-mile front when other armored American troops in the central sector jumped off Monday morning in a new northward assault that gained four miles in its first four hours.

This drive, aimed at destroying a North Korean army corps menacing the inland flank of the UN forces pressing upon Seoul, swept up from Hoengsong to within 24 miles of Chunchon, astride a major road to Parallel 38.

Some 55 miles to the west, two U. S. Eighth Army tank-infantry columns rammed through and around Anyang, then plunged another two miles to the north to bring the Communist-held South Korean capital within siege-gun range.

In this vital west sector, where the advance was renewed after desperate Red counter-attacks were crushed, surviving enemy units were running up white surrender flags to save themselves from further punishment.

The capture of Anyang and the additional two-mile gain imperiled the flank of one large mass of Chinese troops to the east and shot big American spearheads within 27 air miles below Parallel 38. The latter is the dividing line between South and North Korea.

Lt. Gen. Matthew M. Ridgway, Eighth Army chief and commander of all UN ground forces in Korea, went up to the front beyond Anyang for a personal look at the progress of his hard-hitting vanguards.

Fighting raged behind and in front of the general as he inspected the combat action near Seoul's southern border. The massive advance was resumed at dawn Monday in the 12th day of a devastating UN comeback offensive which has inflicted at least 32,000 casualties on the Chinese and North Korean invaders.

International News Service War Correspondent Frank Conniff reported from the thunderous western front that Eighth Army officers termed the twin-pronged drive beyond Anyang "the strongest armored punch seen in the Korean war."

Conniff's dispatch, received at 9:20 Monday night, said that the two armor-led columns that swept within five miles of Seoul had killed at least 500 and wounded 1,500 members of an opposing Red division.

The 2,000 enemy casualties inflicted Monday in only the Anyang portion of the front were in addition to 8,635 Red

Treasury Boss Gives U.S. 'Needs'

Income, Excise Levies Are Urged

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 — The government hinted today it may ask for a tax on food, rents and clothing as Treasury Secretary Snyder spelled out the details of the administration's $10 billion tax increase program.

Snyder urged Congress to act swiftly on President Truman's request for tax increases of $4 billion annually on individual incomes, $3 billion on corporations, and $3 billion on excise levies.

The Treasury secretary asked for a four percentage point across-the-board increase in the 20 to 91 percent individual income taxes, and an eight percentage point boost in the 25 to 47 percent corporation tax.

He asked that excise taxes on these consumer items be raised at the manufacturers' level as follows:

PASSENGER automobiles, from seven percent to 20 percent, estimated additional revenue, $685 million; refrigerators, television sets, radios, phonographs, electric, gas and oil appliances, and other consumer durable goods, from 10 percent to 25 percent, $425 million; liquor, from $9 to $12 per gallon, beer, from $8 to $12 per barrel, and wines, varying increases, $710 million; cigarettes, from seven cents to 10 cents per pack, and cigars, varying increases, $525 million; gasoline, from 14 cents to three cents per gallon, $580 million; miscellaneous, $110 million; total, $3,035 billion.

Snyder also recommended the following excise tax changes: Bowling alleys and billiard tables, from $20 per table or alley to 20 percent of charge for use;

Furs, from 20 percent of retail price if fur is valued at more than three times the next most important component to 20 percent of retail price if fur is component of chief value; golf green fees, from no tax to 20 percent of charge; jewelry, extend 20 percent tax on retail price to silver plated flatware and certain fountain pens, and make boost to 20 percent the rate of clocks and watches now taxed at 10 per cent; and extend

UN Chieftain Ignoring Reds

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 5 — Assembly President Nasrallah Entezam of Iran turned a deaf ear today to broadcasts and statements from Peiping against UN peace overtures and drafted his "good offices" committee.

Although Mao Tse-tung let it be known through India that the UN General Assembly's indictment of Red China as an aggressor in Korea ended all chances for a peaceful settlement—it was voted by 44 to 7 last Thursday—Entezam believes that he must exhaust every possible effort for peace.

Wedded Men Face Draft

New Order Now Being Written

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—Draft Director Hershey announced today that he has prepared an order to draft men aged 19 through 25 with one dependent and estimated that some 220,000 men will be affected.

Hershey explained that married men with no children or unmarried men with only one dependent, such as a mother or a father, would be affected. The present exemption for veterans would be unchanged.

The Selective Service chief made the announcement at the manpower hearings of the House Armed Services Committee.

Hershey said he had drafted the order, but that Labor Secretary Tobin and Defense Secretary Marshall must concur before it goes to President Truman for his signature.

Under the order, married men with at least one child or unmarried men with at least two dependents would be deferred.

HERSHEY SAID the order is expected to be coupled with a re-examination of men recently classified 4-F. The re-examination is expected to yield some 75,000 additional inductees.

Thus, Hershey said, the two

Those who have filed petitions are Thurman I. Miller for mayor, Boyd Horn for 4th Ward councilman and Ray Cook for 2nd Ward councilman.

SITUATION VERY TIGHT

U.S. Railroaders Continue To Ignore Pleas To Work

CHICAGO, Feb. 5 — The government moved on two fronts today to end the "sick" strike by railroad switchmen which virtually has paralyzed rail transportation in the nation, threatens New York and areas of the Midwest with a food shortage and has idled more than 300,000 persons.

Reports from scattered sections indicated that some of the switchmen were returning to their posts, apparently in response to appeals from President Truman, the head of the Railway Mediation Board and a federal judge.

But the movement was not general. An estimated 12,000 switchmen remained home "too sick to work," Col. Ross Barr, in charge of the railroads in Chicago, the nation's rail center,

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 — Rep. Cox, (D) Ga., today asks his colleagues in Congress: "I wonder if the Congress has the patriotism and decency to deal with the railroad worker who is now on strike against our soldiers who are fighting and dying in Korea."

said there were no indications of a back-to-work movement at any of the major terminals. The rail yard men demand 48 hours pay for a 40-hour work week and the road men want a flat 20 percent wage increase. The carriers have offered a wage boost of 25 cents an hour for yard men and 10 cents an hour for road men.

MEANWHILE, in Washington, John Thad Scott, head of National Railway Mediation Board told the strikers they threaten both the national defense and their own cause by the wildcat walkout.

Leaders of the striking union, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and three other operating railroad brotherhoods are to present their terms for a settlement of disputes with the carriers to Scott today.

In still another effort to end the walkout, government attorneys into federal court in Chicago to attempt to win a contempt of court citation and a heavy fine against the BRT.

Judge Michael L. Igoe recessed the hearing Saturday after appealing to the strikers to return to work and allow their leaders to settle their demands at the conference table.

The tieup caused supplies of fresh vegetables, fruit and sea food to dwindle to the critical point in Chicago and New York. Retailers in the eastern city also indicated that rationing will be necessary within a day or two if food supplies do not begin moving.

Most serious threat to business activity came from disruptions in commuter train service for the major cities.

Army authorities at the Chicago headquarters, which controls operation of all western railroads, said the situation "is as tight as a drum."

They indicated that if a break develops in the six-day tieup today it will come when switchmen decide to heed the appeal of Scott that they return to work as a means of aiding settlement of their dispute with the carriers.

Jury Indicts 'Five Percenter'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 — A federal grand jury today indicted James V. Hunt, a central figure in the 1949 "five percenter" probe, on four counts charging he "unlawfully" accepted fees for aid in procuring scarce items for businessmen.

Hunt, a wartime Army colonel and former $50-a-day consultant for the War Assets Administration, was accused of illegal activities in connection with alleged transactions taking place between April 19, 1946, and June 2, 1946.

Latest A-Blast Fails To Come

LAS VEGAS, Feb. 5 — Tense Las Vegas residents this morning relaxed their vigilance when cloudy weather covered South-east Nevada and the "usual" dawn hour passed without an atomic test explosion.

Probably the biggest blast was officially set for the "near future" yesterday and this morning thousands of citizens were awake and prepared for the explosion at dawn. It didn't come.

WHITE HOUSE MAY ANSWER

Question Of Policing Bogs Price Control Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 — The government's price control program is bogged down today in a difference of opinion over who shall enforce the regulations and the question may have to be decided by the White House.

The issue is whether enforcement shall rest with Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle's new agency or the Justice Department.

It stems from apparently conflicting provisions in the Economic Controls Act, which says in one place that the stabilization agency cannot delegate enforcement authority and in another that justice shall conduct all litigation arising out of the act.

Until the question is answered—perhaps by Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson or President Truman himself—the price office has stopped hiring enforcement personnel to staff its regional and district offices in 35 cities across the nation.

As one high official explained:

"WHY SHOULD WE commit a large amount of tax money by hiring men for enforcement when we don't know whether they'll have any official status?"

Earlier, however, DiSalle renewed a declaration that black marketeers and other violators of the controls act will be vigorously pursued.

DiSalle said that "we have appointed a very strong enforcement director (Washington Attorney F. Joseph Donahue), and I am here to pledge to you that people who do violate the law will be relentlessly prosecuted."

It was Donahue, installed only last Monday, who pointed out to DiSalle the apparent discrepancy in the controls act enforcement provisions.

Although the Justice Department reportedly has issued an opinion that it alone has authority to enforce the act, officials of that department denied there has been any "grab for power" or anything approaching a major jurisdictional dispute.

Under the World War II price control law, Justice handled criminal cases and the legal staff of the old Office of Price Administration prosecuted civil suits.

It had been assumed that this same procedure would be followed under the new controls law.

Solons To Probe Lustron Plant

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 — The Senate Banking Committee today directed Sens. Sparkman, (D) Ala., and Capehart, (R) Ind., to go to Columbus, O., to hold hearings on proposals for disposing of the Lustron prefabricated house plant.

The two senators will visit the plant as representatives of the committee's housing subcommittee.

Banking Chairman Maybank, (D) S. C., announced that the Columbus hearings will begin Tuesday, Feb. 13.

MANY WALLS ARE DAMAGED

Winter Grip Relaxes, But It Brings Costly Trouble

Old Man Winter relaxed his grip on Ohio Monday, but in doing so he proved himself to be an expensive nuisance.

The big thaw which followed the big snow was causing damage to many a local home and business house.

The snow came on the heels of an icy layer and therein was the answer. Eaves were clogged with ice and melted snow water could find no way to enter downspouts which also were ice-clogged.

As a result, water backed up under eaves, trickled down on the inside walls.

Many a home plastering and wallpapering job was ruined. Businessmen were keeping a close watch on their inside walls. Some were forced Sunday and Monday to start moving merchandise and counters backward.

The Circleville Herald did not escape the damaging drip.

SEVERAL OF ITS jumbo rolls of newsprint were damaged and high-priced and scarce paper had to be stripped away, discarded as waste.

And the tough part of the whole situation—whether the loss was suffered in a home or in a business establishment—insurance policies just are not written to cover such cases. The property owner is stuck with the whole loss.

The mercury steered clear of the sub-zero temperatures which upset the routine comfort of thousands last week and aimed at highs between 24 and 32 Monday.

Monday was to continue cloudy with occasional light snow flurries in the east and north sections of the state both Monday night and Tuesday, the forecaster said.

There will be little change in temperatures Tuesday, he added. Lows Monday night will range from 20 to 25 degrees.

The break in the sub-zero cold wave gave the state a chance to

U.S. Ground Soldier 'Soon' Due To Be Using Guided A-Missiles

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 — The Army's chief of staff predicted today that the American soldier—whom he termed the "finest soldier in the world"—will soon be aided by atomic guided missiles and artillery.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins said that the Army would have some guided missiles—not necessarily atomic—within 18 months.

With the advent of atomic guided missiles and artillery "not many years" from now, "Lightning Joe" Collins declared U. S. ground troops would have atomic ammunition for some of the close support now provided by conventional artillery and fighter-bombers.

In his reference to atomic guided missiles, Collins said:

"The guided missile has great possibilities as a means of delivering the atomic bomb tactically, and for use in close support under adverse weather and lighting conditions."

The four-star general also declared that American troops in Korea were proving fully as adaptable as their Communist opponents as they achieved experience. He added that lack of a Universal Military Service law "inevitably leaves us, then, at the start of an operation, with relatively 'green' men."

The chief of staff admitted it was difficult to train U. S. soldiers to get off the roads in combat.

Collins said:

"It's the hardest thing in the world to get troops to walk, particularly American youngsters that are wedded to the idea that if they want to go to the movies two blocks away they take the family car."

"Yes, our troops were road-bound at the start. I'm afraid they will always be relatively roadbound, till they learn that if they're going to save casualties they must get off the roads in the forward areas."

The chief of staff also said that "so far as I know not a single new American medium tank has been knocked out by a Russian T-34 tank," and that the new 3.5 bazooka has been an "amazing success" against enemy tanks.

Yank Flier Says GIs Optimistic About Outcome In Korea

There is an optimistic watch-and-wait attitude among many American airmen now fighting against the North Korean and Chinese Communists.

This is the opinion of one U.S. Airforce man who left the Far East theatre only about a week ago, and is now in Circleville.

He is Tech. Sgt. William J. Lewis who is visiting his family now living on Park Place, Circleville. His wife, the former Eileen Kirby, and their three sons, Jackie, Kent and Dale, are living with Mrs. Lewis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey H. Kirby.

The sergeant, who is assigned to the B-29 Far East Bomber Command on Yokota Air Base near Tokyo, Japan, is a specialist in aircraft maintenance and repair. A crew chief, his duties include diagnosis of damage to 3-29s returning from strikes in Korea, and inspection of repairs made.

Lewis said here Monday that the watch-and-wait attitude he feels among his colleagues in the U.S. Airforce is based on the thought that the Korean war "can end almost anytime now."

He said that it is his opinion most American airmen believe that the Chinese Communists hold the key to the future of peace or war in the Orient. He said:

"There are enough Chinese Communists to push us completely out of Korea. They only have to decide whether they are willing to pay the price in casualties."

Airforce and Army reports have pointed out that the Chinese are losing manpower at a surprising rate, not only from United Nations firepower, but from disease as well.

Lewis said that many of his Airforce colleagues believe that the Chinese now may be realizing that they are "fighting a war for Russia with nothing to gain even if they take all of Korea."

As a result, the airman opined, Americans in the Far East believe that the day may not be too far off when the Chinese will pull out of Korea completely. What further Communistic development would follow is anybody's guess.

Lewis declared that American airmen "have a lot of hope and faith in the United Nations organization" meeting in Lake Success.

He solemnly declared that "whether we have peace or war probably depends on actions taken by UN."

And what does a returning military man think of the attitude of civilians back home?

Lewis admitted he was surprised—at the "buckle-down attitude." He added:

"Unlike during the last war, I find that folks back home seem to be more calm and determined. There is not as much hysteria. I think the home folks are set to work through a long, hard time of it if necessary."

The sergeant returned to Circleville via air. He flew from Tokyo to Wake to Honolulu to San Francisco, via TransWorld Airlines and by another commercial airline to Chicago and Cincinnati.

He was met in the Queen City by Mrs. Lewis. Lewis and his wife met at Lockbourne base during the early part of World War II.

A native of Florida, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Lewis of Tallahassee Route 2. He was graduated by Leon high school and has been in the Airforce since July 1, 1940.

He left the States for Japan more than a year ago, was assigned to the Yokota base about 3 miles west of Tokyo. Yokota is considered to be one of the finest aerial installations in the Far East Command.

Lewis is among the group of little-heralded men of the Airforce who "keep 'em in the air."

He shares little of the direct glory given to a squadron of bombers which goes out and blasts a vital enemy installation.

But without men like Lewis, that same bomber squadron could not make its run—and could not be put in shape to make return trips.

Lewis and his men not only make maintenance checkups and overhauls of the big bombers, they also repair those damaged in action. Principal damage comes from anti-aircraft fire, but the Communists have been only irregular in this field, Lewis said:

"Their AA shells (mostly 88 mm.) are of lower quality than that used during World War II. Shrapnel seems to be much poorer. And many of their shells do not explode. Perhaps they lack even fuses. But many of the hits scored on our planes are just solid penetration shots which continue on through."

"We had one queer one last week. Somehow a shell had entered one of our planes lengthwise. It had good force because it brushed three men and killed a fourth in addition to smashing an instrument board and going through armor plate near the copilot's position."

Lewis works closely with men who are sent out on bombing missions over Korea, thus keeps a close watch on developments, not only on the fighting front, but on main United States bases as well.

He reported that he finds the Japanese to be "unusually friendly" and added he believed "they would fight on our side at a minute's notice."

Asked whether American airmen see a need for the use of atomic weapons against the Chinese Communists, he said:

"Well, I am a heavy bomber man. We believe that strategic bombing pays major dividends. Targets for the A-bomb are scarce in Korea itself. I believe that we would do some good if we could knock out the enemy's industrial centers and supply bases. But that means bombing in Manchuria and China. And as far as I know, we have no orders for that.

"Anyhow, there is the question of what our sister nations would think of us if we again used the A-bomb."

He indicated he believed there would be no hesitation if the UN gave the go-ahead.

Lewis is expecting to remain in the states for about a month, then return to his base in Japan. Passage will be via air again—only 36 hours from Frisco to Tokyo. He was granted special leave when doctors here decreed that Mrs. Lewis must undergo surgery. She was to have entered the Airforce hospital near Dayton Monday.

Treasury Boss Gives U.S. 'Needs'

IT ALL ADDS UP to what Committee Chairman Doughton, (D) N. C., calls "the roughest road and the heaviest load we have ever faced." In his many years of government service, Doughton has piloted more tax bills through Congress than any other man in history.

At the opening of public hearings by the House Ways and Means Committee, Snyder emphasized that new sources of revenue must be explored to make up the remaining $8.5 billion of an anticipated $18.5 billion deficit for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Towards that end, he revealed that the Treasury and the joint tax committee staff of Congress is studying the possibility of levying new excise taxes.

Snyder stated that extension of excise taxes to food, rent and clothing, plus such household items as rugs and furniture, "would involve a departure from established policy."

He added, however, that "the pressure for revenue" may require additions to the excise tax list, emphasizing that the $10 billion will meet only the need of the immediate future.

In emphasizing the urgency for obtaining new revenue because of the huge defense expenditures, Snyder revealed that the government's deficit for the current fiscal year ending June 30 will be "several billion dollars" and may exceed $15 billion for the nine-month period beginning April 1.

HE ADDED THAT the deficit for the new fiscal year may even exceed the estimated $16.5 billion.

A four percentage point boost in personal income taxes would raise the starting rate applicable to the first $2,000 of taxable net income (after deductions and exemptions for a single person and $4,000 for a married couple to 24 percent.

Thus, a married person with two dependents and with a net income of $3,000 who now pays $488 or 16.3 percent of his income in tax would pay $584 or 19.5 percent. At the $25,000 level, the tax would increase from $9,796 or 39.2 percent to $10,772 or 43.1 percent.

Snyder recommended no change in the $600 deduction for individuals or the community property or split income provision, but urged the committee to consider possible revisions later.

The secretary said attention should be given also to obtaining increased revenue from the following sources:

By increasing the capital gains tax from 25 percent to 27.5 percent and by doubling the six-month holding period; by applying a withholding tax to corporation dividends and interest payments to individuals; by reducing percentage depletion to 15 percent of gross income for oil, gas and sulphur, and to five percent for non-metallic minerals.

SNYDER ALSO urged that consideration be given to taxing the retained funds of cooperatives, mutual savings banks, and building and loan associations at the regular corporation income tax rate.

He also recommended revision of the tax on life insurance companies, taxation of future issues of tax-exempt state and local securities, and revision of estate and gift taxes.

The secretary added that the committee may wish to study changes in the 77 percent excess profits taxes on corporations voted last Jan. 1.

Taking A Wife Fails To Change Draft Status

Young Dan Cupid has to be pretty foxy to upset pre-set plans for draftees in Pickaway County.

The county draft board said that in most cases men who married after the outbreak of hostilities in Korea and others who marry after receiving notice of intended induction are not deferred.

The matter of deferment, accomplished by reclassification into the 3-A dependency status, in cases affected by the young man with the bow 'n arrow was left to the discretion of local boards by state Selective Service headquarters.

Local draft officials said that in one or two cases men have been reclassified here because of marriage, "but it all depends on the individual case. Each is considered separately."

In Columbus, the situation is looked upon as "very serious" by the five draft boards there. They are of a mind not to reclassify men who turn to wedding bells to drown out the sound of induction gongs.

Biggest snag to the draft boards is having to decide if the prospective draftee was married "on the spur of the moment." The draft boards, and even the draftee, may not be able to decide that point.

Train Accident Victim Improves

Condition of Therious G. Moore, 30, of 422 South Washington street, was reported "improving" Monday in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus.

Moore was injured last Tuesday when his auto was struck by a Norfolk and Western Railway locomotive at West High street crossing.

Attaches in Mt. Carmel hospital Monday said the man's condition was still serious, although he has shown improvement. He suffered a skull fracture, multiple lacerations and a fractured right arm in the crash.

Moore is in room 132 of Mt. Carmel hospital.

Fireman Bernard Wolfe said an unidentified man called the fire station Monday with the solution to the icicle problem.

A 22-year-old Columbus soldier, who walked into Circleville police station last weekend seeking the address of an aunt, was headed back toward Army life Monday.

Officer Harold Green said the soldier, William W. Morrow, came into the station Sunday night and asked directions to the home of his aunt.

"He couldn't furnish leave papers," Green said. "We found out later that he was AWOL from the Army."

Morrow was expected to have been returned to Ft. Hayes in Columbus late Monday.

Original petition was filed by the husband, who was found guilty of gross neglect of duty as claimed in a cross petition filed by the wife.

Firemen Called Twice; No Fires

Circleville firemen were called out twice last weekend although neither call involved a fire.

The firemen were summoned at 5 p. m. Saturday to investigate a water leak in an East Main street home.

"Only thing we could do was advise them to set out a tub to catch the water," Wise said.

Other call for the firemen was at about 12:30 p. m. Sunday, when they were asked to unlock a door on South Pickaway street for a woman who had locked herself outside.

Owls are night birds, because their chief food is mice, which have nocturnal habits.

UN Drives Near Seoul

officers and men killed or wounded Sunday along the Korean battle line by UN ground forces alone.

The latter figure was announced in an official Eighth Army field headquarters communique Monday night. Previously, official summaries had listed nearly 22,000 enemy troops killed or wounded by UN ground and air action in the first 10 days of the offensive.

The latest Eighth Army bulletin said the enemy offered "moderate resistance" Monday "in the face of the UN limited advance which probed enemy positions 11 miles northwest of Suwon and in the Anyang area."

Suwon is 17 air miles south of Seoul and 23 miles southeast of the Red-occupied capital's port of Inchon. Thus, a UN force had driven to within 12 miles southeast of Inchon which was struck anew by the eight-inch and five-inch guns of Allied cruisers and destroyers.

American troops on the central front also renewed northward thrusts above Hoengsong after beating off counter-attacks on that hub, 53 miles east-southeast of Seoul, by two North Korean platoons in man-to-man combat.

INS War Correspondent Irwin Tress reported from the central area at 9:50 Monday night that the tank-led Americans had launched their attack at 8 a. m. and gained four miles during the first four hours against "light resistance."

Tress said that, according to latest reports, the northward drive in the middle of the Korean peninsula was "still gaining."

He added that the assault was coordinated with action by other U. S. 10th Corps elements on the east flank of the central front where "moderate resistance" was encountered.

"The drive is aimed at the heart of the Fifth North Korean Corps."

The latter enemy corps had been massing for an expected flanking assault down the center of Korea.

At the eastern coastal end of the 140-mile Korean front, other UN forces battled units of three enemy battalions some two miles south of Kangnung and 19 miles below the 38th Parallel. Allied warships and planes gave close support to these UN troops, killing hundreds of the Reds.

In the west sector below Seoul, the Eighth Army announced, enemy attacks on Turkish troops holding Hill 109, which is 10 miles west-northwest of that town, were repulsed Monday morning.

Eight miles north-northwest of Suwon, the communique said, other American troops captured Hill 427. A UN force 10 miles northwest of Suwon beat back a battalion-sized Red counter-blow after a fierce fight.

The Eighth Army bulletin added that a UN "task force" was hammered by Red artillery east of Anyang at midday Monday.

Helpful Hints To Taxpayers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—

Warning to income taxpayers: Do not claim exemptions for dependents unless they receive at least 51 percent of their support from you and are closely related to you.

The Internal Revenue Bureau will be checking more carefully on exemptions for dependents this year, and persons claiming dependents who fail to qualify under the law may get into difficulty with the tax collector.

To qualify, a dependent must be a child or a child's descendant, stepchild, adopted child, parent, grandparent, brother or sister, in-law relative, uncle, aunt, etc. Cousins are not recognized. Also persons who receive $500 or more of gross income for the year are not allowed as dependents.

Kathe has worked for Loveless Electric since its start here last April. Loveless lives at 213 Walnut street.

2 Are Arrested Here After Traffic Mishaps

Two persons were arrested in one of three minor auto accidents in Circleville last weekend.

City police reported icy conditions a contributing factor in all three crashes, which caused little property damage.

In one of the mishaps, a three-car accident at Court and Mound street at about 12:30 a. m. Sunday, Vere Thomas, 65, of 406 East Franklin street, was arrested for allegedly failing to yield the right of way.

In addition, Carl A. Wilson, 25, of Columbus, driving one of the other two autos, was arrested for allegedly operating an auto with fictitious tags.

Thomas was released on $20 bond and Wilson was released on $25 bond.

DISEASES STILL BATTLED

Need For Plant Research Is Detailed By Scientist

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—Officials of the government's plant science program warn that crops would be overcome by diseases within 10 years if breeding research were halted.

Dr. Robert M. Salter, chief of the Federal Bureau of Plant Industry, says that research must be continued to meet real or potential danger from the 50,000 known diseases of crop plants, and points out:

"It is the judgment of many scientists that if breeding research were to be discontinued, within a decade most of the varieties of crops now grown would succumb to diseases and the result might be starvation for millions of people."

The statement comes at a period in the nation's history when government leaders are thinking about where they can save money. A shift in the Agriculture Department's research programs is forthcoming to meet immediate mobilization demands.

RESEARCH SCIENTISTS, however, urge strongly that studies on seemingly inconsequential projects not be curtailed because they often pay big dividends to the national welfare after many years of research.

Salter says there is evidence that sustained research in recent years is about to pay off in another "upsurge in crop improvement and food production efficiency in a period when it may be badly needed."

The chief of the government's plant research says that the buildup of research techniques and data in recent years "now is making possible shifts necessary to meet new conditions."

This buildup, he says, includes highlights such as: Development of more crop plant hybrids, intensified efforts to increase stocks of seeds of new processing and handling projects on farms, engineering improvements that increase efficiency and simplify farm operations.

Salter says researchers are working on methods to develop crop plants with resistance to several diseases as well as some other factors limiting production, such as insects, nematodes and temperature and moisture extremes.

Combined, or multiple-resistant lines of wheat, oats, sugar beets, tobacco, potatoes and several other crops are being developed.

Among other things, Salter points out, further hybridizing of corn may produce varieties that will resist the European corn borer. A new variety of sugar beet combines resistance to black root and leaf spot.

Other examples of what is being done in plant research include: A variety of potato has been found to be resistant to late blight, scab, and certain other diseases, and new varieties of flue-cured tobacco have been developed to resist black shank and granville wilt.

Fire Chief 'Plays' With Fire; He Got Burned, Too

Circleville Fire Chief Talmer Wise toyed with fire recently—and blistered his fingers and leg.

The chief said it all happened when he went to fire the furnace in his home. As he opened the furnace door he saw a tiny green elephant, an ornament from a necklace, just inside the door.

He reached for it. That's when he blistered his fingers.

He dropped it in his pocket. That's when he burned his leg. And after all that, he found that the rescue was in vain.

"My wife had thrown the thing in the furnace to keep the grandchildren from playing with it. She was afraid one of them might swallow it," the chief related sadly.

THE UNSHELTERED 99

MILLARD F. Caldwell is a frank man. He is also the new Administrator of Civil Defense. A few hours after he had been confirmed by the Senate, Mr. Caldwell said huge sums it is proposed to spend on bomb shelters would not protect even 1 percent of the population from air attack.

This candid admission was made to the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Washington. Caldwell was speaking, of course, of the plan to build, from coast to coast, a series of underground shelters in critical target areas. Congress has allocated—but not appropriated—$2.25 billion for this enterprise.

Hard-pressed states are supposed to put up dollar for dollar with the federal government. What this would mean to the internal economy of the states has been pointed out by a half dozen governors. But while heavy investments will be made in civil defense in one way or another, there is more to it than a chain of man-made caves.

Caldwell enumerates a few of the horrendous possibilities—bacteriological warfare, radiological warfare, sabotage. These he thinks, are more immediate dangers than the atomic bomb. Caldwell's position, which is not without support among other civil defense authorities, should lead logically to a reappraisal of the $5 billion shelter proposition.

AIRPLANE SPOTTERS

On February 10 and 11 the Air Force will conduct a "raid" to test the organization of the aircraft warning corps in the nation, especially in the East.

Right now there seems to be difficulty in convincing civilians that the aircraft warning corps is necessary—and will be necessary if war should spread. But radar is simply not enough. The military defense blueprints of the nation call for a network of these spotting posts.

There are to dovetail with a series of filter stations that keep in touch with fighter units geared for the protection of the coast lines. Actually being a spotter is neither time consuming nor hazardous. A well organized post with enough personnel should not require the service of any one spotter more than two hours a week.

Developments of deeper concern to the American people have been following each other so rapidly, the general inclination now seems to be to follow Truman's lead and just assume Margaret can sing.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—It has been announced by a new magazine called Why that 600 psychiatrists, psychologists, newspaper editors and radio columnists have selected the 10 best-adjusted Americans of 1950.

It is an interesting group, although it contains a man named Truman who was selected "because he can accept rebuff with resilience," and there appears to be a minimum of press-agency involved, only the names of Esther Williams, Dave Garroway and Ed Wynn being suspect from this angle.

As a kind of counterpoint, I would like to offer herewith the 10 worst-adjusted New Yorkers of this or any other year. As you all know, nobody is well adjusted in this city, and the competition for worst-adjusted always is keen and hotly contested. I have left out newspapermen in making up my list, and although this cut down the number of candidates sharply, there were plenty left.

The Ten Worst-Adjusted New Yorkers:

MOTHMANGLE M. WINTERGREEN—Mr. Wintergreen is the press agent for Hortense Jenny Flannemouth, the famous picture star. In the last month, he has managed to obtain for his charming and beautiful client 13 mentions in newspaper columns, five feature stories in the Sunday supplements, nomination by 600 artists as the Woman We Would Love Most to Daub, by shrewd undercover work six Academy awards. For these labors, Mr. Wintergreen is being let out of the end of this month. "You take my money every week and you do nothing for me!" Miss Flannemouth screamed at him. He has an early reservation in the psycho ward at Bellevue.

FINCHLEY CULPEPPER—Mr. Culpepper is a subway guard, working the Times Square station of the West Side line. Over the years he has perfected the technique of getting that last passenger into the train by kicking him or her in the back. The last passenger expects this treatment and accepts it meekly. The other night a Bronx man, on receiving the kick, turned around and knocked out Mr. Culpepper with one punch. The blow was nothing; the damage to Mr. C's nervous system beyond repair. He is in an advanced state of shock.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

I have received an invitation from the Chaplain Alexander D. Goode Lodge of the B'nai B'rith to attend a dinner in honor of three chaplains whose services during the last year measured up to the glorious heroism of the four chaplains of the USS Dorchester.

This particular B'nai B'rith lodge is named after the Jewish chaplain who went down on the Dorchester, and having accepted the honor of using his name, its members sought for a means of serving the armed forces in a suitable manner.

As I gather the story, it would seem that out of conversations with Chaplain Joshua L. Goldberg of the Navy, the lodge reached the conclusion that they would give awards to three chaplains each year who "typify the devotion and sacrifice of the four chaplains who went down together when the USS Dorchester sank on Feb. 3, 1943."

That was done at the Waldorf-Astoria Sunday night, but this article is being written prior to the event because the broader implications of the concept make the awards, and not the banquet, important.

The chaplain services in our armed forces represent a distinctively American recognition of the rights of the individual, under all conditions, to freedom of faith, to an acknowledgment of his God and to freedom of access to religious worship without let or hindrance. This has been American tradition for three centuries, with a few unfortunate and much criticized lapses in Colonial times.

The chaplain, in our armed services, represents not only his own church, but all churches; he speaks not for a sect or a cult, but for the men of God in our nation; he is not only a professional clergyman, but the conscience of our nation among the fighting men, and he comes to these men, and women, too, in these days, almost as a parent.

It is an acknowledgement of the indisputable fact that our nation was founded in the spirit of the Creator, as the Declaration of Independence so clearly stipulates. So in war and peace, the men of God hold before our people "the laws of nature and of nature's God" and the broad concept that "all men are created equal" and possess "unalienable rights," and among those rights must be the right to be close to one's faith and traditions even in the circumstances of war.

The heroism and self-sacrifice of the chaplains of all faiths is an American saga. At this particular banquet of the Chaplain Alexander D. Goode Lodge of B'nai B'rith, awards were given to two Protestants and a Catholic: Commander Robert M. Schwyhart of the Navy; Major Merritt O. Slawson of the Airforce; and Captain Herman G. Felhoelter of the Army.

According to the program, Abel Greenberg, president of the lodge, offered the awards, which were received by the chief chaplains of each service in the presence of Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews.

Chaplain Felhoelter died in action on the Kum river in the Korean war. Himself wounded, Father Felhoelter voluntarily remained behind to aid the dying and wounded and "when last seen was still ministering" in the service to his men. "His valor and

A New Treatment For Warts

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WARTS are likely to appear suddenly in fairly large crops and to disappear in the same way. This has given rise to the belief, still somewhat prevalent, that they can be banished by charms or spells.

Modern medicine has a trick which works like magic against these unsightly growths but which, nevertheless, is scientifically sound. It is based on our long-standing belief that warts, like a number of other skin disorders, are caused by a virus infection, and is made possible by the fact that aureomycin, one of our newest antibiotics, will attack viruses. It is the only one of our wonder drugs, thus far, which is effective in this way.

Large Numbers

Six patients with large numbers of rapidly growing and spreading warts were treated with aureomycin.

One of those treated was a six-year-old child who had warts involving the forehead, cheeks, and neck, with a few on the palms of her hands. In her case, aureomycin was given by mouth, morning and evening. Within twelve hours, much improvement occurred and, within a day and a half, this improvement was even more noticeable. After four days, the warts had become flattened, and treatment was discontinued for a period of six days. After

Beneficial Effects

It would appear, therefore, that aureomycin has a beneficial effect in certain types of common warts, particularly those in children. The treatment has been tried only on two types of warts, those known as verruca vulgaris and the filiform warts. These two types, as stated, are more common in children than in grown-ups.

If simple measures of treatment do not relieve these patients, treatment with aureomycin would seem worth while.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. W. P.: What causes drying and cracking of the eyelids and back of the ears?

Answer: These conditions are usually due to some type of eczema or sensitivity to some substance with which the skin comes in contact. In some cases it may be due to infection with ringworm or a similar condition. The disorder known as seborrhea dermatitis may produce it.

An examination by your physician is needed to find the cause before treatment can be advised.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

GAMADGE had his last look at the list when he slowed up at the Coldfield gate. He sat looking out at the house and grounds before he turned in; in this rainy light the place was bleak enough, but it could never be very gay. There were a lot of the big old trees, which matched the color of the rough stone building and stables; and the ugly stone seemed to soak up the rain.

But that house wouldn't be damp inside; it had been built as tight as a drum. Surveying the big sunken door, Gamadge wondered how he and Harold could ever have got anybody out of the place.

He tried to draw upon his historical sense, but he simply couldn't imagine those square blue envelopes coming to that door; or did Mrs. Deane Coldfield have to drive down to the post office herself, in the shining carriage or—more probably—in her neat dog-cart, to get her foreign mail? But she could always explain that her English correspondent was a lady, that dear kind Lady Totten, who hadn't much of interest to say.

Gamadge roused himself from this reverie and rolled the car down over fine wet gravel to the doorstep. A plump maid let him in, took his card, and ushered him into the drawing-room on the left of the hall. She lighted lamps, and went away.

There were closed folding-doors at the end of the room, shutting it off from the library of Harold's description. Gamadge stood and looked around him. A fine well-proportioned parlor, but it would have looked better with the original fringed and looped curtains at the high windows, the original fringed and buttoned furniture and the crystal chandelier. It had been done over apparently at the turn of the century.

This generation of Coldfields took its time; the family was evidently studying his card. After something of a wait the folding-doors were pushed open, and a small, slender, greying man stood between them. He said, "Mr. Gamadge: do come in."

Gamadge advanced into a handsome library; there were plenty of books in glass cases, there was a fire burning in a wide hearth, there were comfortable chairs and sofas and a carved oak table. A man and two women sat in the chairs that faced him as he came in; the man rose—a tall, big, ruddy man; Ira Coldfield.

Ames was pale, with pale blue eyes. He held out his hand. "Mr. Gamadge," he said in his high, carefully accented voice, "I find I know you by reputation. Your books. We are all so much interested. We had no idea." He looked greatly amused.

Gamadge shook hands and said he was gratified.

"Since I do know you, after a fashion," continued Ames, "I'd better introduce you and the family. I myself am Ames Coldfield. This is my sister-in-law Georgette, and this young woman is my niece Susan. And there, scowling at you, though he knows better than to do it, is my brother Ira."

Gamadge nodded amiably to the others.

"Had we but known!" said Ames with his giggle. "And had you but known that your name was a passport into this house at any time."

"That wasn't exactly the idea," Gamadge, now completing the wide circle in front of the fire, with the others opposite him and Ames on his left, had the big oak table on his right. He leaned against a corner of it, and spoke amiably. "The idea was to get Mrs. Glendon Coldfield out, passport or no passport."

"And you succeeded," chuckled Ames, "in the most romantic way. It was comical, too, from one point of view. Mine, in fact; I saw the strategy from the dining-room, and the departure when I got out on the doorstep. Adventure in the home. I haven't been so stimulated since my Anthony Hope days. I can read him yet."

Gamadge wasn't paying much attention to this highly civilized approach. He let his eyes wander over the others—Ira Coldfield, with his clipped blond moustache and his angry blue eyes; Mrs. Ira, handsome in her red dress and her gold jewelry. She had hazel eyes, tight bronze hair, plenty of makeup, a good figure verging on heaviness, a hard stare. The hazel eyes were a little prominent, and they looked frightened.

Susan Coldfield had the hazel eyes, and the bronze hair—but it was the bronze that her mother's had been long ago. Her coloring was natural and beautiful, her features fine, her bones smaller than Georgette Coldfield's. She was in a dark-green dress, very smart and plain. Her expression was one of mortification.

Ira put a stop to his brother's speech. He said furiously, "There's no occasion for all this."

"None," agreed Gamadge. "You can't want me in the house longer than necessary. I shall deliver your sister-in-law's message, collect her luggage, and go."

Ira said loudly, "I don't want to hear her message—I know well enough what it will be. I tell you and I tell her that I don't give an inch, and neither does my wife or my brother. She was in a crazy, dangerous state of mind, and we shouldn't have been safe in the house with her if she hadn't been restrained—in the most humane, kindest way. Ask her doctor."

"I should like to," said Gamadge. "I was looking forward to it. But I don't see him."

There was a short pause. Then Ira burst out, "He was to be here."

"But he drove out of town," said Susan dryly. "Very important call, you know."

Her mother turned on her sharply. "Susan, this affects you. That's why you're here now. Please remember it."

Gamadge said equably, "Let me deliver the message; it will make a difference in your point of view. Mrs. Glendon Coldfield withdraws her statement."

The pause was longer this time; even Susan looked stupefied.

At last Ames spoke—tentatively. "You mean she now says she was mistaken?"

"Quite mistaken," replied Gamadge. "Nobody went mad and poisoned her husband, nobody went mad and tried to poison her. She sees that clearly."

Ames said after a moment, "But this is a miracle. I assure you, Mr. Gamadge—but you can't know, of course, what she's put us through. Not in detail."

Ira asked in a flat voice, "What made her change her mind?"

"Well, I may say I argued her out of the idea," said Gamadge.

Another pause, but nobody asked the obvious question. The answer to the question was so clear to all but one of them that there was no reason to ask it. One of them would never ask it.

"In that case," said Ames, astonishedly giving way to what certainly resembled relief, "let's all sit down. You must hear our side of it, Mr. Gamadge; you really must. You've earned our eternal gratitude, we now regard you as our dearest friend. A miracle!" He looked at the others. "How shall we reward him?"

"We might ask him," said Susan, dryly, "what Sylvia would like."

Valentine's Day Party Ideas And Special Menu Are Outlined In Detail

Special Favors Are Described

If you're looking for an excuse to throw a party, this is the month. There is a holiday ahead—Valentine's Day—which offers an opportunity to get the gang together for a pleasant evening or a little home party with just the family seated around a gaily decked table with a special menu for making an event out of an inexpensive Valentine's dinner.

Whether planning a family affair or an evening of fun, here are a few suggestions to help.

For the family affair why not a large Valentine heart cake as a centerpiece, and an easy fruit dessert to accompany the cake? Here is how to make the cake:

Measure 1 c. margarine or shortening into a mixing bowl; let stand at room temperature until soft enough to cream. Then with a spoon work in 1 1/4 c. sugar, 4 well-beaten eggs and 1 tsp. vanilla.

Sift together 2 c. cake flour, 3 tsp. baking powder and 1-3 tsp. salt. Add alternately with 1 c. milk to the first mixture.

Transfer to a good-sized oiled heart-shaped pan, the bottom lined with wax paper.

Spoon the remaining batter into oiled individual heart-shaped pans. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 F. Allow 50 min. for the loaf and 25-30 min. for the little cakes.

When cold, spread the cakes with plain icing, leaving it white, or tinting it pale pink with vegetable coloring.

Decorate with red hearts, scissors from candied cherries, or for an amusing touch, use candy motto hearts.

Cover a pretty tray with lace covered doilies. Put the large cake in the center; surround with the small cake. Border with greens or a few spring blossoms.

The fruit dessert is delicious, too. Half defrost and heap in a bowl 1 pkg. each quick-frozen peaches and quick frozen strawberries.

For the evening party make your party food and decorations as gay and sentimental as the holiday it suggests.

Why not plan a souvenir gift for each guest? Something that will make them remember the party long after it's over. Wrap each present prettily and place it in a gay gift-centerpiece. And, of course, place cards and Valentine's place mats are a must. Here are directions for making these decorations:

Gift Centerpiece: Cover a box with red crepe paper. To create a handsome ruffled effect at the top, cut out strips 2 in. wide from 8-in. square doilies and past them on the inside of the box.

Ruffle as you paste them around the box. Next, paste an 8-in. square doily on each side of the box, over the red crepe paper. Paste a heart cut-out in the center of each doily and then paste a Cupid cut-out in the center of each heart.

Fill the centerpiece with little gift packages, one for each guest.

Place Cards: Draw a rectangle 4 in. long by 1 1/2 in. wide on white drawing paper.

Fold so that the length remains the same and the width is halved to form a place card that will stand up, the fold at top.

Cut out the round center of a 6-in. square lacepaper doily measuring 2 in. in diameter. On it paste a small Cupid seal and paste the circle on the left-hand side of the place card.

In the main portion of the card, write the name of the guest.

Place Mats: Paste two 7-inch heart cut-outs (you can make them with red drawing paper) on a 10 x 15 in. place mat doily.

Paste them so that one overlaps the other slightly and is a bit higher than the other.

Make an arrow. On a piece of plain white drawing paper, make a pattern. Make this pattern in two parts, one half to consist of the feather end of the arrow and a portion of the shaft, the other part to consist of a portion of the shaft with the head of the arrow. The feather part should be 2 in. wide and 3 1/2 in. long, with a thin shaft 1/4 in. wide and 3 in. long.

The arrow head should be 2 1/2 in. long and 3 1/2 in. wide with a shaft of about 1/4 in. wide and 3 1/2 in. long.

Cut out the pattern and then trace it on gold drawing paper and cut out as many as you need.

Paste the two parts over the hearts so that they give the effect of an arrow piercing the two hearts.

For colorful party sandwiches, use Philadelphia cream cheese softened with a little cream and tinted red. Add chopped pimientos and olives.

Cut out hearts from slices of bread with a cookie cutter and fill with cheese mixture.

COOKBOOK of the WEEK

FROM THE COLLECTION OF 24 OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST COOKBOOKS
Sponsored by this Newspaper

Have you ever thought of dropping popcorn on piping hot soup? This is just one of many new and unusual ideas that fill "250 Delicious Soups," the sixth book in the Culinary Arts Institute series of 24 cookbooks, now available to readers of The Circleville Herald.

Like the previous books in the series, this cookbook is full of new ways to pep up your menus and the many illustrations give you all kinds of serving ideas. The carefully tested recipes include many foreign soups and all varieties of vegetable, meat, fish, poultry, and legume soups. But besides this wide selection of old and new methods of preparing soup are many imaginative ways of prettying up that steaming bowl so that it comes to the table dressed in Sunday best. Suggestions vary from something as simple as a sprig of parsley or a handful of croutons to delicious marrow balls and dumplings. Here is an unusual variation of familiar dumplings:

Italian Potato Dumplings
1 cup mashed potatoes
1 1/2 tablespoons olive or salad oil
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
Dash nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon salt

Combine all ingredients. Mix thoroughly; sprinkle flour on pastry board and place long strips (about 1/2 inch in diameter) of the potato mixture on it. Roll strips carefully in flour, cut into 1/2-inch pieces and round into balls. Fry in hot deep fat (365 deg. to 380 deg. F.) until brown, drain well and serve in very hot beef or veal broth. Serves 6.

To get your copy of the Soup Book and to catch up with the other books in the series, Snacks, Leftovers, Cakes, Poultry, and Pies, simply present 15 cents for each book to your independent grocer in Circleville.

BILLS STILL ROLLING IN

Legislature Due To Open Its 6th Week Of Parleys

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5 —The Ohio Legislature begins its sixth week tonight with just one more week remaining for the introduction of new bills in the house.

The deadline for new bills is next Monday. After that unanimous consent is required to sponsor a proposal for a new law in the house.

The senate has the same rule, but ignores it by granting "unanimous consent" automatically. As a result, bills continue to pour in the senate hopper right up to the end of the session.

To date this year, 298 bills have been introduced in the house and 98 in the senate, for a total of 392. In the last session, the first five weeks were productive of 358 bills, including 255 in the house and 103 in the senate.

In the sixth week of the last session, 121 measures were sponsored in the house and 31 in the senate. This was less than the total of "deadline day" alone, when an amazing total of 329 bills came in in a single night, 277 of them in the house.

THE HOUSE THEN shut off introduction of bills, and only five more—all necessary appropriations measures—were added up to the end of the session. The senate, however, received another 230 bills before the session went home for good.

In all, last session, there were 658 bills introduced in the house and 416 in the senate. However, only about 27½ percent, or 294 of the 1,074 bills finally became law.

The senate had slightly the better batting average, since 135 of its 416 bills were enacted. The house enacted 159 of 658 bills.

Interest tonight centers on another hearing by the house highways committee on the emergency bill to extend the use of 1951 auto license plates, which already are in the hands of deputy registrars.

The committee last Tuesday recommended for passage the senate-approved Republican plan to use both license plates this year, and then issue windshield stickers in 1952, '53 and '54 to extend their use through those years.

However, the following night, the committee reversed itself, voted to reconsider the measure, and sent it to a subcommittee with orders to report back a substitute bill tonight.

GOVERNOR LAUSCHE originally proposed the extension of license plates both to save 1,600 tons of steel a year for the war effort and also because the sheet steel needed for the plates could not be purchased under the state's purchasing set-up.

The state may not accept bids with an escalator clause, and the steel makers refuse to sell except for the price current at the time of delivery. This impasse made it impossible to get steel for the manufacture of 1952 plates.

Lausche wants to use only one plate this year and have the deputy registrars return the second plate to a central warehouse in Columbus. A windshield sticker would be issued next year to continue the single plate in use.

Then, in 1953, the second plate, since restamped "1953" in place of "1951" and re-painted in different colors, could be issued. A second windshield sticker could continue it in use through 1953 if necessary.

The governor contends that the plates will not last more than two years in service, and in this he was backed up by Warden Ralph Alvis of the Ohio Penitentiary, where the tags are made.

THE SENATE Republican majority junked his arguments and plan, however, in favor of its own proposal to use both plates, contending that two plates are necessary for the convenience of law enforcement officers. The GOP also argued that it would be too much of a hardship on deputy registrars to require them to return the second plate to Columbus.

If a single plate is to be used, the bill will have to be rushed to passage before the end of the month, since plates go on sale March 1.

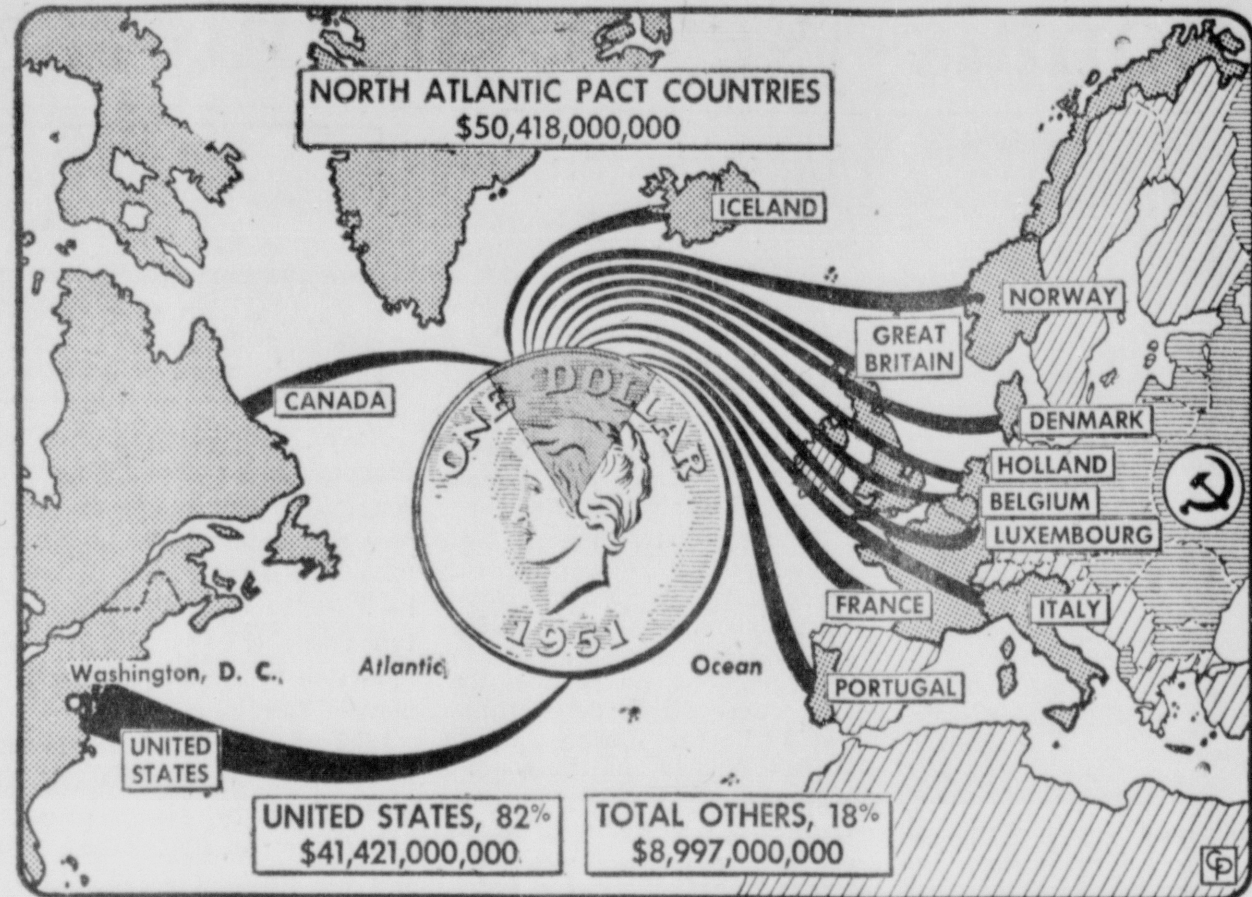

Hoover Booked For Policy Talk

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—Former President Herbert Hoover will make a second speech on American foreign policy Friday.

The Mutual Broadcasting System announced that he will speak over its network from 9 to 9:30 p. m. (EST).

Mr. Hoover's speech on Dec. 20 set off a debate on whether American troops should be sent to Europe to defend the continent against Communist aggression.

Bernice Miller, the former President's secretary, said the title of his Friday speech will be "We Should Revise Our Foreign Policy."

PRESENT PLANS call for Uncle Sam to foot 82 per cent of the $50,418,000,000 bill this year for rearming western Europe against Communist aggression, a survey of Atlantic pact capitals shows. The $41,421,000,000 United States commitment figures out to $271.44 for each man, woman and child in the nation.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Here's a problem that's sometimes shared by many of us... sent in by a high school girl.

"Will you please tell me how to get a boy to like you?" she writes. "Please publish an article on the subject."

If I knew a can't-fail answer to that one, I'd be a millionaire and probably the most successful writer who ever lived!

Liking people just seems to happen, for the most part. People just naturally like you or not and there's sometimes very little that you can do about it, because everybody doesn't like the same kind of girl—or boy.

You'll be more likeable, however, if you—

1. Show an interest in the boy and in the things that interest him.
2. Ask his opinion and advice.
3. Enjoy the sports and things that he enjoys.
4. Invite him to a party or dance when there's a chance.
5. Give him your entire attention when he talks to you.
6. Compliment him on what he does well or would like to do well.
7. Be gay and have fun doing what he suggests, even if it's a hockey game when you'd rather go to see Alan Ladd's newest picture.
8. Avoid arguments, heated discussions, gossip and catty remarks.
9. Avoid keeping him waiting when he calls for you and avoid being too hard on his allowance during dates.

Indian Bureau Is Lashed By Blackfeet Chief

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 — A Blackfoot chieftain accused the government's Indian Bureau today of trying to stir up "an old-fashioned cowboy and Indian war" on his Montana reservation by offering grazing rights without tribal consent.

The war-cry was sounded by George Pambrun, chairman of the tribal council. He charged that the bureau is auctioning off grazing rights on the reservation illegally because the council has not approved the move.

Pambrun said: "The Indian Bureau is doing its best to stir up an old-fashioned cowboy and Indian war on the Blackfeet reservation in Montana. I predict that the Indian Bureau will not be successful in its efforts to persuade white sheepmen and cattlemen to run their stock on Indian lands and to ignore Indian protests."

"The Blackfeet council has run a series of public advertisements in leading Montana newspapers warning sheepmen and cattlemen to keep their stock off

SCS-PMA Merger Coming Soon, Brannan Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—Agriculture Secretary Brannan plans to announce this week his plan for the marriage of the Soil Conservation Service and the Production and Marketing Administration.

This merger has been on and off for many years, but Brannan vows he is going through with it and plans to make known his plan this week, or next week at the latest.

The proposal to join the two large agencies of the department is a hot issue of controversy between friends of PMA, friends of SCS and between those two and friends of economy.

Friends of the Soil Conservation Service say that if the merger takes place, PMA should be under conservation service leadership. PMA friends, in turn, say that the Soil Conservation Service is only an appendage of the mammoth price supporting agency.

And friends of economy say there is too much duplication of government programs in the states and counties because the two are two and not one.

3 Local Men Attending Navy Training Center

Three Circleville seaman recruits, Paul E. Ankrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Ankrom of 136 York street; Harry E. Briner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Briner of 117 Town street, and Richard E. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin Anderson of 1027 South Washington street, are undergoing recruit training at the world's largest Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Illinois.

Recruit training is the sharp break between civilian and naval life in which the new Navy men learn the fundamental principles of the naval service.

In the course of their training the recruits are taught seamanship, Navy customs, terms, basic ordnance, gunnery, signaling and navigation.

Upon completion of his training, the recruit is assigned either to units of the fleet or to a service school for specialized training.

DiSalle Booked For Price Talk

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—Price Administrator Michael V. DiSalle will make his first progress report on the price control program in an address in Toledo tonight.

DiSalle plans a half-hour talk beginning at 10:30 p. m. (EST) at the Toledo Town Meeting and then will answer questions from a panel of local residents.

Members of the panel are J. B. Simmons Jr., city councilman, acting as moderator; James Ublehart, radio commentator; and Paul Schraeder, managing editor of the Toledo Blade.

O'Neill Readies Decision On Bomb Liability

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5—Attorney General C. William O'Neill announced today that he is preparing an opinion of the extent of liability of the workmen's compensation fund and self insurers in the event of atomic bomb attack deaths or injuries.

O'Neill's opinion in this phase of liability will be the first in the nation. The statement will be in answer to a query by the state industrial commission.

The attorney general's interpretation of the law in the matter may serve as a guide to determine the liability if or when Ohio industries are subjected to enemy attack.

The state industrial commission members contend that an atomic attack on the large industrial plants in Ohio would wipe out the state's workmen compensation fund if the state were to pay for deaths and injuries caused by the raid.

No court decisions on the subject have been made so the attorney general will have to base his opinion on laws applicable to the situation.

Peppy, attractive-looking Mrs. Gema D. Waites of 127 Rotary Street, Montgomery, Alabama, is a dutiful daughter and followed her mother's advice. She writes us: "As I am a Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound user of only 2½ months I want you to know how it has helped me. I am going through functional change of life and feel so nervous and suffer so from hot spells, wasn't able to do my work—had to quit work. I have only taken three bottles and this is my fourth bottle. I think it is a wonderful medicine to relieve such symptoms. It sure has done wonders for me in this way."

"My mother recommended it for me. She took it when she was going through the change 20 years ago. Thank you for such a wonderful medicine."

If this functional period makes you suffer from hot flushes, tense emotions, or makes you feel so weak, nervous, restless, hard to live and work with—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. Women by the thousands

Mrs. Gema D. Waites

IMMEDIATE CHANGE ASKED

Yankee Chief Demanding New Commissioner Now

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 — Del Webb, who owns 50 percent of the New York Yankees, declared today that major league baseball must have a new commissioner "immediately."

In an effort to arrive at a choice in the face of Happy Chandler's fight to stay in office, Webb called for the second meeting within 24 hours of the committee set up to name a new commissioner.

The anti-Chandler faction among the baseball owners felt more confident than ever today despite the plea of the incumbent commissioner made at the 28th annual New York Baseball Writers' dinner last night.

Webb had no news to offer following yesterday's meeting with Ellis Ryan, Cleveland owner, and Lou Perini, of the Boston Braves, Phil Wrigley, the Chicago Cubs owner who is the fourth member of this committee, was absent because of illness.

However, the Yankees' owner said:

"WE HAVE TO TAKE action. We cannot permit baseball to be run by a lame duck commis-

NCAA May Lose Battle To TV; Laws Readied

CHICAGO, Feb. 5—The National Collegiate Athletic Association, already stripped of most of its powers, is in danger today of losing a battle to that "old debbil" television.

The legislatures of Illinois and Minnesota have bills before them that would overrule the NCAA's ban on video.

NCAA representatives gave TV the heave-ho at their January meeting in Dallas, Tex., because they said it had an "adverse effect on college football attendance."

The main function of the association prior to its annual convention last month was the administration of the sanity code which regulated financial aid to athletes. The code was dropped.

This left the NCAA with little more than schedule-making functions except for its authority over some 300 colleges on the use of television. And now this control is being challenged.

Universities like Illinois and Minnesota are under the supervision of their respective states. They operate on taxes and therefore must do what their state legislatures decide is the greatest good for the greatest number of people.

A refusal to abide by a statute calling for the televising of football games conceivably could put an institution's operating revenue in jeopardy.

Baer Inks $100,000 Wrestling Pact

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—Former Heavyweight Champion Max Baer has signed a $100,000 contract as a professional wrestler.

Wrestling Manager Joe (Toots) Modt announced Baer's signing yesterday and said the former heavyweight king, who lives in Sacramento, Cal., will begin his new career March 1.

OSU Sprinters Set Record

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5—The Ohio State sprint medley relay team returned today to Ohio with the laurels of the Michigan State indoor relays in East Lansing.

The team, composed of Gene Cole, Herman Turner, Goodwyn Goodhart and Len Truex, broke the East Lansing record to win the relay event in 3:03.3.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 5—Gene Desautels, ex-Columbus catcher, will manage the Little Rock Travelers this season. He has been shifted 39 times in his baseball career of 19 years.

sioner. I am hopeful that within the next few days the members of our committee can narrow the list of candidates down to six or seven names.

"When we have a list of men qualified for the job, our committee will ask for a joint meeting of the two leagues."

Webb went on to explain that a joint meeting can only be called by Chandler himself, Ford Frick, National League president, or Will Harridge, American League proxy, on 30 days notice.

In opposition to the feelings of Perini, Webb believed that a new commissioner can be named in the Spring.

"In my opinion," he said, "we are in a desperate situation. The sooner we get out of it the better, so why should we hesitate in our election of a new commissioner? At St. Petersburg, by a vote of 9 to 7, the club owners decided they did not want to re-sign Chandler."

The club owners heard Chandler's speech, which was the major address at the writers' dinner. He followed the same pattern of talks at previous writers' dinners in Chicago and Boston. It was a plea that he be continued in office.

Chandler said:

"SEVENTY MILLION American fans are baseball's board of directors. They ask for no annual reports on the game's stewardship, but they do write to the chairman of their board from time to time.

"In the last two months I have learned that we have many vigilant directors. As long as their corporation's internal strife is up for a public airing, they want to know all the facts. Unfortunately I have been able to give them only arguments for the defense; the brief filed by the plaintiff has never been placed in my hands."

Chandler implied that the New York writers had always been hostile to him. Chandler also said that President Truman could have saved the club owners a great deal of trouble.

He said:

"When the Korean war began I went to the President and told him that baseball would follow the same practice of the last war, by not asking for any favors. I then reminded the President that I have been a reserve officer for 20 years and offered him my services. Had he accepted he would have saved the owners a good deal of trouble."

Grand Circuit Due For Opening In Toledo May 21

TOLEDO, Feb. 5—The 1951 Grand Circuit harness racing program will open May 21 at Ft. Miami Raceway, Toledo.

The sidewheelers' meet will run from May 21 through June 9. Midwest harness fans will be treated to four more big purse races this coming season on the Big Five Circuit (DuQuoin, Indianapolis, Sedalia, Springfield and Delaware) meetings as the first four named meetings have added the Mid-American Trot and Pace for free-for-all stock. Each race will carry a purse of $10,000.

This addition of $80,000 in purses will bring the estimated total of prize money for the Big Five to over $600,000 for the 1951 campaign on the midwest's leading non-betting harness race meetings.

Figures recently released by the United States Trotting Association show the sport continues to grow and live up to its name as America's fastest growing sport.

A final computation of purses for the 1950 season show that the season just passed was the most lucrative of all time with a total of $11,527,711 in prize money. This is compared to $11,303,247 in 1949.

A record number of horses also faced the starter in 1950 when 10,281 faced the starters gates from coast to coast in comparison to a total of 9,798 the previous year.

Figures just released a week ago pointed out at 15.9 percent increase in wagering for a total of $242,835,529 and a 3.6 percent increase in attendance for a total of 7,037,540 fans at the nation's parimutuel tracks where sulky drivers ply their trade for the wagering public.

Ashville's Oracle Is Forsaking Home '5; Picks Monroe To Win

Unless Ashville's cage oracle is wrong, Monroe stands to take the Pickaway County basketball league crown Tuesday when Ashville Bronco basketballers invade the Indian court.

For the first time this season, the Ashville "guesspert" has forsaken his Bronco crew to favor an opposing team.

It was no easy job for him to do this, however. The oracle compensated for his traitorous action by adding:

"I'd give anything to be wrong on this one."

While apparently having lost faith in his hometown team in the Ashville-Monroe fracas, the oracle remains true in one respect—that of selecting Jackson as a loser.

Jackson's Wildcat cagers have given the oracle his roughest treatment in the county by consistently defying his predictions to win.

WITH ONLY ONE or two exceptions, the Jackson team, possibly goaded by the underdog role in which they are placed by the "predictor," has come through to win when selected to lose.

In fact, Jackson has become known as the "upset" team of the county league, having proved itself capable of upsetting any of the major league powers.

Jackson is again disfavored in its makeup match against Pickaway, although the oracle admits the outcome will be close.

Should Monroe's Indian aggregation do as the oracle suggests Tuesday it will have won the county league title without dispute, since it has lost only one league game in nine starts to date. All of the other league teams have lost at least two loop matches.

Complete list of selections made by the Ashville for the regularly scheduled Ashville-Monroe contest and five loop matches postponed from last week is as follows:

"Ashville at Monroe. All the eyes of basketball fans in Pickaway County will be looking at Five Points. Deke Eberle is liable to pull some smart tricks out of the bag and try to upset Monroe. I'd give anything to be wrong on this one. MONROE.

"Scioto at Williamsport. Shouldn't be much of a game with the home team carrying the bacon. WILLIAMSPORT.

"Darby at Walnut. The Trojans all the way. DARB.

"Atlanta at New Holland. The Red Raiders sure gave New Holland trouble early in the season. May do it again. NEW HOLLAND.

"Jackson at Pickaway. This is anybody's ball game. The home floor may help the Pirates. PICKAWAY.

"Ashville at Saltcreek. Still in the cellar after this, although they did move it back to Tartan. ASHVILLE."

Gehrmann Due To Give Wilt Chance In AAU

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—Don Gehrmann, who has been doing a fine job eluding the FBI this indoor track season, intends to give the G-men a break by "disappearing."

The Wisconsin flyer, who goes after his 38th straight mile victory Saturday in the New York AC Baxter Feature, will bypass next week's National AAU mile in favor of the 1,000-yard run.

This would appear to give FBI Agent Fred Wilt a crack at the AAU mile crown. Fred hasn't been able to catch Gehrmann all season and indications are that he won't do it Saturday in the Baxter.

Gehrmann scored his sixth win over Wilt last Saturday in the Boston AA Hunter Mile. Don beat Fred by twelve yards as he set a new Boston indoor mark of 4:07.9.

Gehrmann will be shooting for the meet record in the Baxter. Chuck Fenske and Les Mac-Mitchell hold this mark with winning times of 4:07.4.

In the Hunter Mile, Gehrmann proved once again that he can overcome a torrid pace and win out with his tremendous last lap kick.

He was awarded the John J. Hallahan Trophy as the outstanding performer at the Boston games.

Second place in the voting went to Georgetown's Carl Joyce, who beat a strong field in the 1,000-yard run in 2:12.

Local Farm Produce Prices Compared With State Average

Most Tags Reported Up 8 Pct.

Slaughter Total Hiked 2.5 Pct.

Pickaway County farmers Monday were studying a report on statewide produce prices to see how local tags compared with the Ohio average.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service declared its figures showed that the mid-January level of farm produce prices gained eight percent and the number of animals slaughtered was up two and one-half percent.

Almost all farm produce was higher except potatoes. All meat animal prices were approximately 12 percent higher than the previous month with sheep and lambs showing increases of approximately 40 percent.

Feed grains and hay went up six percent and were 30 percent greater than the same period a year ago. Corn was $1.64 a bushel, an 11-cent increase over the Dec. 15 price and oats were up four cents to 96 cents a bushel.

ALL DAIRY PRODUCTS were higher than the previous month. A 14-cent drop in eggs from 57 cents a dozen to 43 cents on Jan. 15 more than offset a 2.5 cent increase in chicken prices. Eggs, showing a decrease in the last month, were still 14 cents higher than last year. Wool was up 20 cents per pound and set a new record high of 94 cents—about 92 percent above the price in 1950.

The December slaughter was estimated at 163,342,000 pounds over the preceding month's 159,015,000 pounds. It was 10 percent above December, 1949.

The December slaughter included 78,000 head of cattle, as compared with 80,000 in November. Calves slaughter totalled 24,000 head as compared with 25,000 in November. The year's calf slaughter numbered 365,000, some 16,000 head less than in 1949.

A total of 361,000 hogs were killed. There were 341,000 killed in the preceding month. The 1950 hog slaughter totalled 3,698,000, a 13 percent increase over the previous year.

There were 14,000 head of sheep and lambs killed in November, some 2,000 less than November figures.

Wholesale milk prices in December averaged $4.35 per hundredweight at the 21 principal fluid markets and $3.30 at Ohio milk manufacturing plants.

THE FLUID MARKET

paid 20 cents more for milk in December than in November and 49 cents higher than a year ago. The plant price was 17 cents higher than November and 50 cents higher than a year ago.

Four million pounds less milk went to the fluid markets in December, 1950, than was processed in the same month of 1949. The manufacturing plants received seven million pounds less.

A total of 2,310,000,000 pounds of milk went to the fluid markets in 1950. This total was 61,000,000 more than a year ago. With the delivery of 1,618,000,000 pounds of milk to manufacturing plants in 1950, it was a 78,000,000 pound drop from the previous year.

Toledo Plants Remain Closed

TOLEDO, Feb. 5—Large industries in the Toledo area remained closed today despite the end of the state of emergency called by Mayor Ollie Czelusta. I. A. Ludwig, head of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., said fuel gas pressure is normal in all homes and to plants of commercial users, except the 170 large industries in Northwestern Ohio whose gas supply is still completely shut off.

Mayor Czelusta said the city law department will be asked to prepare a formal complaint to-day charging Ohio Fuel with "apparent discrimination against Toledo."

duction was less in 1950 than 1949. Evaporated milk and Swiss cheese production was up.

Ohio Insures No Bridges

COLUMBUS, Feb. 5 — Ohio would be in a mighty embarrassing position today if it should encounter a disaster similar to that of the Three Rivers, Quebec, collapse of a $3 million bridge.

Edward J. Quinn of Cincinnati, chairman of the Ohio Bridge Commission, has pointed out that Ohio does not insure a ny public structure. He said any damage claims resulting from such a catastrophe would have to be handled through a sundry claims bill in the legislature.

That would leave the state out the cost of one bridge.
